Note

Percy Edward Newberry M.A. O.B.E. was born on 23 April 1869 and died at his home in Godalming, England on 7 August 1949. He was educated at King's College School and King's College, London and later mentored in the field of Egyptology by Reginald Stuart Poole of the British Museum and Francis Llewellyn Griffith. Newberry began his career at the Egypt Exploration Fund and from 1890 to 1894 headed an expedition to investigate the tombs of Middle Kingdom nomarchs at Beni Hasan and El Bersha. In 1893-4 he published a two-volume monograph Beni Hasan which remains a definitive account of the tombs there. Newberry then operated as a freelance excavator from 1895-1901, undertaking a survey of the Necropolis at Thebes. In 1902 Newberry worked on the Catalogue Général of Egyptian Antiquities at the Cairo Museum.

In 1906 Newberry was appointed Brunner Professor of Egyptology at the University of Liverpool, a position he held until 1919. In 1919 Newberry was appointed O.B.E. In 1923 he served as President of the Anthropological Section of the British Association and from 1926-1927 was Vice-President of the Royal Anthropological Institute. In 1929 Newberry accepted the chair of Ancient Egyptian History and Archaeology at the University of Egypt, Cairo, a post he held until 1933.

Newberry published extensively on the field of Egyptology (see Magee, Diana, 'The Egyptological Bibliography of Percy Edward Newberry (1869-1949), in The Journal of Egyptian Archaeology, Volume 76, 1990) as well as Botany. Notable publications include several volumes in the series of the Archaeological Survey of Egypt, two volumes in the Catalogue Général of the Cairo Museum and Scarabs (1906).

On 12 February 1907 Newberry married Essie Winifred Johnston (1878-1953). There were no children of the marriage. Although largely undocumented, Newberry was previously married from 1894 to Helena Aders who he divorced in 1904.

Custodial history

The Newberry collection was initially catalogued by J. R. Harris in 1954. Harris also appraised the material and recommended the following groups of material be destroyed:

- Preliminary and intermediate MSS of articles of which identical final typescripts or revised drafts exist
- Inscriptions taken direct from publications, including a number of digests of books
- Scrap paper (Harris states in his report dated 6 December 1954 'Newberry had a mania for pasting little scraps of paper on to larger ones without logical connection...I have followed a reverse policy, removing all the minute scraps and placing them in envelopes.')

Harris's arrangement comprised 22 groups of material sorted according to subject or format. The catalogue is held by the Griffith Institute and his reference codes which begin PEN/G. have been included as alternative identifiers in this new listing.

Another attempt was made to arrange the collection by Diana Magee who began sorting the material into a fewer number of subject groups. Evidence of this work is still present in the collection with notes written by Magee left in to help researchers identify material. The arrangement however was not completed.

Scope and content

The Percy Newberry Collection has been listed thanks to a cataloguing grant from the The National Archives in 2015. The collection comprises a wide range of material on topics including Predynastic Egypt, Theban tombs, Egyptian flora and fauna, early Egyptian travellers, ancient Egyptian religion and culture, as well as Newberry's genealogy. Formats include notebooks, research notes, photographs, tracings, rubbings and newspaper clippings.

The collection has been divided into 5 series: Biographical Material; Correspondence; Research Notebooks; Subject Files and Research Material.

The following key subject terms collate material on the same subject which have been listed in different series:

Title notes

Physical condition

No problems.

Immediate source of acquisition

Newberry's collection of research material was gifted to the Griffith Institute by Newberry's widow Essie Newberry and transferred from the British Museum in 1951.

Newberry's correspondence was listed by Warren Dawson and deposited at The Griffith Institute in 1950.

Three notebooks in the possession of Mr W. Dawson since 1949 (gift by Newberry himself) were deposited in 1960.

Item NEWB3/28 Notebook on Daressy's funeral cones was accessioned in May 2005 (donation by Dr Donald P. Ryan).

In 1988 photographs and research material relating to embroideries among Newberry's papers were transferred to the Department of Eastern Art at the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford.

Arrangement

The collection can be broadly divided into three types of material: correspondence, biographical material (some of which was collated after Newberry's death) and research material. The correspondence was arranged by Warren Dawson and this remains a distinct series with his catalogue now included as part of the collection.

The rest of the material in the collection was listed by J.R. Harris in 1954 and later partially re-arranged by Diana Magee. It was clear from these arrangements that organising the collection by subject would be problematic. It was therefore decided to arrange the collection by format.

In a letter relating to the accession of Newberry's collection to the Griffith Institute Archive in 1951 Dr I. E. S. Edwards (Keeper of Egyptian Antiquities at the British Museum) lists:

- (1) Tracings of tomb inscriptions and decorations (packed in brown trunk)
- (2) Files containing notes on individual subjects (mainly in filing cabinets)
- (3) A group of texts and other material dealing with the Second Intermediate Period
- (4) A large collection of "scholar's notes" on various subjects for the most part classified but in some cases merely labelled "Miscellaneous notes".

Item 2, the 'Files containing notes on individual subjects', were split up during previous archival processing however it has been decided to arrange these files into one series to reflect original order and Newberry's own system of arrangement. It is however probable that material has been added and removed from these subject files since their accession.

Similarly it has been decided to organise Newberry's notebooks into a separate series as these appear to have been used for reference by Newberry. Some of the notebooks are numbered and referenced by Newberry.

The remaining material has been organised under five subject headings in a series titled 'Research Material'. Much of this research material has previously been grouped into envelopes, folders and wallets by Harris and Magee and these groupings have been maintained where appropriate as evidence of previous processing.

A lot of this material also relates to material in the subject files and notebooks and so the following key subject terms have been created to collate material on the same subject which have been listed in different series:

Nome Ensigns

Flora and Fauna

Predynastic Egypt

Scarabs and Seals

Series NEWB2: Correspondence

Date: 1884-1950 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Newberry's correspondence was sorted and listed after his death by Warren Dawson and donated along with the rest of his material to the Griffith Institute Archive in 1950. The correspondence was arranged alphabetically by surname, with the exception of Arabic names which were arranged by first name.

In the new numbering system these Arabic names have also been arranged by surname. A few letters have also been added to this series which were previously among the research material.

Dawson's reference codes have been included as alternative identifiers and his catalogue of correspondence has been included as the first item in this series.

Towards the end of his life Newberry began to organise his papers including listing and numbering some of his correspondence. These numbers have been included in the description of items. The letter lists are in items NEWB1/03 and NEWB1/04.

Series NEWB3: Research Notebooks

Date: 1881-1949 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Percy Newberry's series of notebooks includes notebooks on single subjects, indexed notebooks on a range of subjects and research journals. Many of the notebooks have been numbered (in the form NB followed by a number) by Newberry and are referenced elsewhere in his research notes. As such it appears that these notebooks were used as reference books by Newberry, and they often include lists of bibliographic references for a subject.

Unfortunately it is evident that this series of notebooks is not complete and there are numbered notebooks referred to in Newberry's research material that do not appear to be in the collection.

Series NEWB4: Subject Files

Date: 1907-1949 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

In a letter relating to the accession of Newberry's collection to the Griffith Institute Archive in 1951 Dr I. E. S. Edwards (Keeper of Egyptian Antiquities at the British Museum) lists 'Files containing notes on individual subjects (mainly in filing cabinets)'. This series is made up of files which are all consistent in appearance and contain notes on individual subjects. Each file tab is labelled with a subject heading and contains research notes. Some of the files contain research that has evidently been done at different times but subsequently gathered together. For example files contain pages cut from notebooks.

Some organisation of this material was done during previous archival processing. Unfortunately it is not possible to know whether the contents of the files are as they were when received or whether related material has been added to these files from elsewhere in the collection.

There is evidence in Newberry's correspondence that in the period after the Second World War to the end of his life in 1948 Newberry was organising his research material in preparation for a general publication on ancient Egyptian history and archaeology. It is possible these files were created by Newberry in preparation for this publication and as such form a distinct series within the collection.

Series NEWB5: Research Material

Date: 1829-1949 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Along with the subject files and notebooks is a large body of research material that does not have any apparent order. It includes several draft manuscripts, card indexes, research notes, tracings, drawings, and photographs. Topics include predynastic Egypt, Egyptian antiquities including scarabs and seals, ancient Egyptian religion as well as relating to research on sites in Egypt including copies of inscriptions, plans and drawings.

In a letter on the transfer of the Newberry collection to the Griffith Institute Archive in 1951 Dr I. E. S. Edwards (Keeper of Egyptian Antiquities at the British Museum) lists: Tracings of tomb inscriptions and decorations (packed in brown trunk); A group of texts and other material dealing with the Second Intermediate Period; and a large collection of "scholar's notes" on various subjects for the most part classified but in some cases merely labelled "Miscellaneous notes". It is this material which now constitutes this series. This material was arranged during previous archival processing according to subject and evidence of this work is still visible by the grouping and labelling of material.

It has been difficult to determine the date of much of this research material. Where a date range is provided it is often based on publications referenced by Newberry in his notes.
