Dear Mother.

We have had D^r Junker staying with us the last three days. He is such a dear, & the most unpriest like priest I have ever seen. He is most frivolous, loves a joke - is most broad minded in every way. He has been going over the ceiling inscriptions to be sure we have got everything correct, & not missed anything in the broken parts & he says we have done it wonderfully considering the difficulties, he had no objection to working on Sunday, he considered it the proper thing to do under the circumstances, he said. "Of course it does not matter, will I not be looking heavenward all the time!!" We were quite sad to see him depart by this morning's train.

Linda Holey is still unwell. The sunstroke has completely upset her tummy, the Oultons have very kindly offered to look after her for a few days as she was getting so depressed here, so she went to Sohag the day before yesterday, we hope the change may do her good.

Ramadan is over now, & this afternoon we set out on our round of visits, we have had presents of feast bread from everybody, our table was piled up with little loaves, & we have to eat a little from each, otherwise they will be hurt & feel that their food will not be blessed.

I do not think we shall be finished here much before the end of April, Amice had underestimated the amount of work remaining to be done, & of course there have been unexpected delays

We are having a holiday from Arabic lessons as the school has closed for two weeks & the schoolmaster is away, I miss our Saturday nights^{sic} entertainment very much, D^r Junker was very impressed with my writing, he has been teaching us some arabic^{sic} proverbs. All our people liked him so much. Abdullah said, "When this excellency is in the house the arab people have no need of a father or a mother.

I wonder if Lady Godiva is in her new home yet. I have the drawing of the garage pinned up on the wall of my room. Amice says it looks more like a church than a garage.

We have been keeping the Observers down in the Temple to read after lunch & I am afraid have forgotten to bring them back to the house & poor Nannie is making such a fuss because she wants big newspapers to cover her table & shelves etc. we have promised to send her the big pile of looked at ones.

Lots of love from us all to you all.

Your affectionate
 daughter
 Myrtle.
