Dear Mother.

If the leather cutters are not in the top drawer of the tool chest in the library they may be in Lady Godiva's tool box, as I think I took them to Wales with us in case we needed to make holes in the luggage straps.

Little Un has gone to Cairo for his holiday & we feel quite a gap. He has quite become a member of our little family, he got quite sentimental about leaving us & says he will probably be back again before his 10 days leave is up. I drove him in to Baliana Wednesday evening & saw him off by the night train, & hope he is having a good time. He will probably be as sorry

 To leave his friends in Cairo as he was to leave us. He has quite a list of shopping to do while there & will come back laden.

We have had quite a number of books tourists since Xmas, there has been a boat load each week & this week there were two. so far there have not been any one we know on board.

There was a couple that amused us very much. the lady wore a leather riding costume & the gentleman wore shorts & carried an ice axe we have been torn with curiosity to know what the latter was for - we are thinking of starting a book of "Tourists I have seen." it would of course have to be illustrated to be worth while.

there are so many amusing things we could do here if only one could make the time a little more elastic.

The Puppy is beginning to find that life is not all fun. he is getting big & very mischevious^{sic} & now has to be sometimes tied up. & is simply enraged at the indignity, he can now jump over the garden wall & has been trespassing on Nannie's preserves. the things she says to him are simply awful. she hopes he may be the last of his race, that he may have a pain in his stomach, & leprosy in his eyes & a few other unpleasant things - fortunately none of these curses seem to affect the pup.

I hear we are to have a visit from The Crown Prince of Egypt soon.

 I suppose he is doing a tour of his country with one of his tutors as he is only about 14 or 15 years old.

We all seem to have been sleepy ever since our visit to the Oultons, late nights certainly do not agree with us.

Amice joins me in lots of love to you both.

Your affectionate daughter Myrtle.

The pictures in your last letter amused us very much.
