Dear Mother.

We had such excitements yesterday we had an unexpected & unofficial visit from the Crown Prince & Princess of Italy We showed them all round the temple & usual sights & they were very thrilled by the view of the desert from the temple roof so we asked if they would like to go out to our pet wady in Joey & they were very keen. there was a sporting young man in their retinue who was acting as host having put his car & servants at their service, he said he would drive them if Amice showed the way. Amice told him his car. (40 horse power) was 'nt^{sic} any good in the desert & we had a hot argument

 & the Prince was rocking with laughter at the way we stuck up for our 7 horses against the 40. & he said he was backing us. so he & the Princess got in Joey with us. & the young man with a friend & an attendant got in their car & off we went.

It was a challenge. he said he would follow any where we liked to go - so we made for our wady, passing our house on the way. & we got right to the mouth of the wady quite happily & got out for Royalty to admire the view. & looking back to see how the other car had got on. to our huge amusement (& delight) it was STUCK in the sand. so after they had seen all they wanted & picked up some pot sherds we drove the Prince & Princess back to our camp & gave them refreshments & sent our men with boards & planks to rescue the poor 40 horses -

The young man was very hot & puffed when he arrived & very sporting & he said Joey had beaten him. so we returned Royalty to the firm road where they changed into the other car to return to Nag Hammadi & they thanked us for giving them such a delightful adventure & were as friendly & matey as could be.

It is such a hot day. I am sticking to the paper.

I have just written the story of Little Red Riding Hood for my last lesson.

Love to you both.
